Next week families from around the country will be gathering around the table for a tradition that we hope never dies. An activity we joined as children is now an activity we lead as adults – and it never stales. However easy it would be to contract the work to a third party, doing so would rob us of the joy we take in cooking for family and friends.

Here, then, are some chardonnays and pinot noirs we recently tasted that would do well with the Thanksgiving turkey:

Gehricke Russian River Chardonnay 2016 Great balance and layered tropical fruit flavors highlighted by pineapple and mango. Citrus aromas and soft finish.
