New Year's Eve is fast approaching, and despite all the pains and struggles of the past, and all the uncertainties of the future, we're determined to meet it with lots of optimistic cheer! After all, "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," (Alexander Pope, 1732) so let's just drink to that!

Thanks to a heightened interest in rosé as well as Champagne and sparkling wines in recent years, a sparkling rosé comes to the top as a beverage of choice for the upcoming New Year celebration.

Guinigi Prosecco Rosé is produced from the traditional glera and pinot noir grapes, grown in the province of Treviso (Veneto) and Fruili Venezia Guilia, Italy. Gorgeous to look at (think pink mother of pearl), and emitting a myriad of tiny bubbles, this light, bright, and aromatic wine carries the notes of apple, white peach, citrus, and wild strawberries on the nose, and cleanses the palate with its refreshing acidity.

Wonderful on its own, as a welcome drink at your party, or enjoyed throughout a meal, Guinigi Prosecco Rosé makes excellent pairings with salads, vegetables, and fresh seafood. Look for it at: <https://www.guinigiwines.com/>.
